

anticoloniales. Quieren para Puerto Rico la soberanía que tienen y disfrutan los norteamericanos. ¡Sí, así es! Los puertorriqueños quieren lo mismo que tienen los norteamericanos: vivir en una nación libre y soberana donde ellos mismos dictan su futuro y no tienen amo.

Los puertorriqueños ven el sol y ven energía que podemos cosechar. Ven la tierra y ven alimentos que nos darán de comer.

Los puertorriqueños están motivados por el amor a la patria y su herencia, y el conocimiento de que podemos ser grandes, que tenemos la inteligencia y la capacidad de innovar y crear.

Desde mi infancia en el destierro en Estados Unidos escuché la canción "Preciosa" y vine a entender que el tirano, la negra maldad es el colonialismo norteamericano. Lo dijo Rafael Hernández, la conciencia cantada de mi pueblo.

Los puertorriqueños recuerdan con añoranza su patria "En mi Viejo San Juan" la canción que dice "... esa extraña nación", como decían los boricuas en Estado Unidos, "esta no es mi tierra," cuando confrontaban el abuso, discriminación y racismo. Puerto Rico lo es.

El puertorriqueño es su diáspora de Nueva York a Chicago, de San Juan a Ponce, todos somos puertorriqueños. Como escribió nuestro poeta nacional, Juan Antonio Corretjer, "Yo sería boricua aunque naciera en la luna". Y, añado con todo el respeto, "sería boricua aun si viviese en la luna".

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Illinois will provide the Clerk a translation of his remarks.

A CENTURY OF SUCCESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. EMMER) for 5 minutes.

Mr. EMMER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to celebrate Mackenthun's Fine Foods in Waconia, Minnesota, for 100 years of business success.

At the beginning of the 20th century, August Mackenthun began a family tradition of making homemade sausage. This tradition was commercialized in 1917 when his son, Arthur, bought a sausage maker from Germany and opened Mackenthun's Meat Market in Waconia.

What began as a modest business quickly transformed into a booming success as Mackenthun's developed a reputation for producing quality meats.

Today, the business is run by Kim and Laurie Mackenthun and their family. While it is now a full-service supermarket, they have maintained the family tradition by offering their signature homemade sausage in the meat department.

Congratulations to the entire Mackenthun family for their 100-year commitment to the family business, for upholding their longstanding tradition, and for exemplifying the American Dream.

We wish you another century of success.

A LEGEND LOST

Mr. EMMER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to celebrate the life and career of a legendary Minnesotan who passed away just last week. Ray Christensen was a renowned sportscaster in the North Star State and best known for his radio play-by-play for the Minnesota Golden Gophers.

A native-born Minnesotan, Ray grew up in Minneapolis and bravely served our country in World War II. After returning from the war, Ray attended the University of Minnesota where he lettered in baseball.

Upon graduation, Ray began his career announcing Gopher football games for WCCO in 1951 and basketball games in 1956. Ray worked for WCCO as a sportscaster until 2001 and was inducted into the Minnesota Broadcast Hall of Fame in 2002.

Ray was the voice that we all grew up with. His voice was the one that we listened to every game day, and Minnesota athletics will certainly not be the same without him. I speak for all Minnesotans when I say that he will truly be missed.

A TOP MINNESOTA SCHOOL

Mr. EMMER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to celebrate Delano Elementary School in my district for being recognized as a Reward School for the fourth time in the past 5 years.

In order to be categorized as a Reward School, the school must be in the top 15 percent of the highest performing schools in the State. Delano Elementary School's updated curriculum, improved physical education program, and new music classes are the best.

□ 1015

A good education opens all of life's doors, and I would like to thank Delano Elementary School for giving Minnesotan students the key. Your dedication to our children deserves recognition, and I am proud to congratulate your work here today.

HONORING CLINTON COLLEGE AND MORRIS COLLEGE IN CELEBRATION OF BLACK HISTORY MONTH

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. CLYBURN) for 5 minutes.

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today, as part of the observation of Black History Month, to continue my series of remarks recognizing HBCUs, Historically Black Colleges and Universities. I am asking my colleagues to join me in celebrating Clinton College, in Rock Hill, South Carolina, and Morris College, in my hometown of Sumter.

Clinton College was founded in 1894 by the A.M.E. Zion Church, under the leadership of Presiding Elder Nero A. Crockett and Reverend W.M. Robinson to combat illiteracy of former slaves. The institution was named for Bishop Caleb Clinton, then the presiding bishop of the Palmetto Annual Conference of the A.M.E. Zion Church. Originally named Clinton Institute, in 1909, it was renamed Clinton Normal and Industrial Institute, and was authorized to grant State teaching certificates.

In the late 1940s, the school was again reorganized as Clinton Junior College, offering various associate degrees in religion and other liberal arts. Still affiliated with the A.M.E. Zion Church, the college has grown and expanded under its current president, Dr. Elaine J. Copeland, who has led the institution since 2002.

In 2013, the college, for the first time, was accredited to offer two bachelor's degree programs, a bachelor of arts in religious studies, and a bachelor of science in business administration. Subsequently, it has changed its name to Clinton College, and enrollment is at a 15-year high.

For the past 120 years, Clinton College has been providing academic excellence, as well as instilling moral and spiritual growth into their students. The college takes pride in being, and I quote its motto, "A Beacon of Light for Today's Scholars and Tomorrow's Leaders."

I thank all of my colleagues for joining me in honoring Clinton College today.

Morris College was established in my hometown of Sumter, South Carolina, by the Baptist Educational and Missionary Convention of South Carolina in 1908, to provide religious and educational training to African Americans. Originally, the college featured elementary and high school education, as well as a college curriculum. Its college offered teaching certificates and degrees in liberal arts and theology. In the 1930s and 1940s, Morris dropped its elementary and high school programs and became solely a liberal arts and religious college.

Morris' graduates include First Lieutenant Leroy Bowman, who was part of the original class of Tuskegee Airmen. These African-American pilots trained in a segregated complex near Tuskegee, Alabama, and the Walterboro Army Air Field in Colleton County, South Carolina.

First Lieutenant Bowman served in World War II, flew 36 combat missions over Germany, and had a decorated service record. He was among 300 surviving Tuskegee Airmen honored with the Congressional Gold Medal in 2007 by President George W. Bush.

My mother graduated from Morris College in 1953, when I was 12 years old. My father studied theology at Morris in the early 1940s for 3 years, but was not allowed to finish his studies because he had not graduated high school. Having been born in 1897, in segregated South Carolina, he was not
